

Caroline Johnston, a Fleming Island native, is honored to be teaching at her alma mater. Ms. Johnston graduated from the University of Florida in 2014, where she studied Political Science, History, and European Union Studies. European History is close to Ms. Johnston's heart as she lived in Europe and returns often for research and leisure. Ms. Johnston is also a teaching fellow with the United States Holocaust Memorial Museum. Though this is only her second year teaching, Ms. Johnston demonstrates a genuine love of history and employs considerable enthusiasm in her lessons. She is excited to see how the AP Program grows over the coming months and cannot wait to have you in her class!
